SALLY JONES' DEATH

WOMAN'S LETTER TO WOMEN.

Written as Only One Woman Can Write to Another.

Men Write From the Head, But Women From the Heart.

That is Why All Women Will Be Impressed By This Letter.

ARSENIC FOUND BY THE CHEMIST.

Accused Charged With Taking Valuables From a Chest.

We publish an interesting letter from Mrs. Anna B. Miller, of 940 West Main St., Ionia, Mich., with her portrait so that our readers can see just how she looks and almost, as it were, hear her speak.

"For forty years," she says, "I have suffered from falling of the womb and female weakness, which caused constipation and a complete obstruction of the bowels at times. In May, 1894, an abscess formed. I lay at the point of death for days, given up, not only by my attending physician, but by two others that were called in. They said that if I did recover from that attack, it would only be to a helpless invalid the rest of my life. During that time I suffered with sleeplessness, was very weak and pale, and was losing my memory. I also had heart trouble. Death would have been a welcome release to me from all my troubles."

Professor Edward F. Wood of the Harvard medical school testified to receiving a letter from Alfred W. Jones in relation to an examination of the stomach and intestines of his mother, who he was positive, had been poisoned. Professor Wood also told of receiving the stomach and intestines of the deceased, and of finding a small quantity of arsenic in the examination, but it was not removed.

He was not able to form an opinion whether the arsenic caused her death until a further examination had been made, and he had been informed of her appearance before and after her death.

The other witness of the day was William Jones, aged 72 years, father of the accused, and the husband of the deceased. He proved an excellent witness for the state in reciting the particulars of the accident, sickness and death of his wife, and the finding of Alfred looking into a chest that contained valuable property of the household. Dec. 3 Mrs. Jones had sufficiently recovered that she worked around the house, and Alfred was a frequent caller. Mrs. Jones was taken sick about 2:30 that afternoon, and, being in great distress, went to bed immediately. She died Dec. 5 after suffering fearful agony. "Alfred told me that his mother was going to die and for me to choose whether I should go with him to his house, or to the county farm. When Sally was dying, Alfred asked Mrs. Prentiss for the keys to the chest where the money and papers were kept. He unlocked the chest and took out the bank books and papers. In the chest were $40 in bills and $10 in gold. There were also diamonds in the chest, together with two notes from Alfred to his mother, one for $150 and another for $210," testified Mr. Jones. Mr. Jones said that he was powerless to stop his son. He looked in the chest on Thursday and did not find any of the valuables. He never had any poison about the house, and did not poison his wife.

THE CUBAN CABINET.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The large measure of authority conferred on the new Cuban cabinet is shown in an official decree issued at Havana Dec. 29, copies of which have been received at the Spanish legation. The document apportions the budget of the island, giving to each cabinet office the amount to be spent in its department, and then states in detail what subjects are to be managed by each minister.

The first provision states the powers which General Madrid and his secretary general, Dr. Canga, will continue to exercise, as follows: "The conduct of general affairs between Spain and Cuba; intercourse with diplomatic and consular offices of foreign governments; census of foreigners; public peace and order; honors and decorations; relations with the church."

When Japan whipped China the powers restricted the spoils to a meagre indemnity. They wanted the territory themselves, and have about made up their minds to take it.

A suggestion from Mr. Hovey Smith upon currency matters has called the attention of a forgetful country to the existence of Mr. Hovey Smith.

The food in the Hennington county jail must be bad indeed, as the St. Paul Globe alleges that a prisoner has threatened to kill himself rather than eat it.

If it costs $300,000 a year, as the report shows, to keep one of the new battleships going, what will it cost to maintain them after they begin to need frequent repairs? Gov. Long is right. These battleships ought not to be kept in constant commission. A lot of smaller vessels will do very well in time of peace, and the big ones could be kept in much better condition and at much less expense at the various navy yards.

QUEER CUSTOMS.

Some of the Domestic Manners of the Mountainers of Norway.

I had given up all thought of doing anything in life but jump from one sharp boulder to another when, as we suddenly rounded a crag, Vigdal stopped again, and turning to the left entered a door that seemed to go into the rock. It was a solid sacristy, or stone hut, standing in the lonely valley by itself and quite different from the club but had already seen. Two hunters, with their wives, live here during the summer months, the men hunting reindeer and their wives keeping house. The hut consisted of a few feet of earth inclosed by a wall of stone four feet thick, set high and covered by a foot of earth laid up in the inside, and divided the space into two rooms, the one next the door for cows, dogs and kettles and the other with the earth for a carpet, for cooking, eating, sleeping and general living apartment.

The room was now quite as full, as comfort, but as square feet of space, allowed, and supper being over Vigdal asked us if we did not want to get off our wet clothes and go to bed. We glanced at the two women, but Vigdal did not seem to see anything unusual in their presence, and forthwith began to undress. He hung his outer clothing by the fire and then got into one of the beds with his wet underclothes on. Even the presence of the two women could not deter him, and after looking longingly at our guide he slipped out of his clothes and crawled into a corner, wrapped for bed, with some doubt as to the conventionalities of Norway.

We might have spared ourselves the worry. The two women took not the slightest notice of us, but went on clearing away the supper and washing the dishes. When we were in bed, they took our clothes and hauled them one by one in a semi circle before the fire. What the women were going to spend the night in the hut did not now seem so important as either as the solution of when they were to leave. But this was soon settled when Vigdal, on being anxiously questioned as to whether they were to be allowed to update to another hut. And out we came to a Norwegian custom increased as the example of the storm in full force out and the calm manner in which Vigdal had us part separate in turning out his body stockings. —Hammon News in this city.

PHYSICAL TRAINING.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 4.—A proposed innovation is likely to be introduced at Harvard, in the near future, in the shape of an accelerated course of physical training for freshmen. Several plans have been suggested, but the one which meets the main approval from the members of the faculty committee, a physical training is a system which provides for a compulsory examination and a prescribed course of gymnastics for three hours a week during the freshman year. The plan will remain open to discussion for some time longer, but will probably be adopted in its essential features next year.

WORK OF A DESERTER.

Washington, Jan. 4.—It is reported to the navy department that Captain Barker on the Oregon has unearthened the identity of the person who wrote the celebrated Good Friday letter, which appeared in the religious press and harped the captain with trying to Romanize all of the ship's crew. The man is said to be Ernest Robin of Castle Rock, Wash., a deserter from the Oregon. It is asserted that he wrote the letter to arouse the sympathy of his relatives and to make a pretext for his desertion.

RAIDED A DOG FIGHT.

Hartford, Jan. 4.—Sheriff Smith, with two deputies, made a dog fight in Bloomfield, which was in progress between Louis' Club and Russell's Club, both owned in this city. About 50 men were present. They scattered in every direction when the officers appeared. The only men arrested were John Stach and Timothy Sullivan of Waterbury. They were released under bonds of $100.

$204, received during the month from the sale of the Union Pacific railroad, $900 paid out to secure a loan on the Kansas Pacific and $4,743 interest paid on the Pacific railroad subsidy bonds not due until January. Excluding these items, the receipts amount to $25,321.494 and expenditures $25,215.654, leaving a surplus for the month of $1,14,831. As compared with December, 1893, there is shown to have been an increase of nearly $10,000 in the revenue from subsidies.

HER CLASSIFICATION.

New Haven, Conn.—A woman and a child were found dead in a house, picked up a "social gathering" which was lying on the table and seeing her own name on the list which dropped the curtains to look over the printed memoranda. The paper was headed, "People who must be invited to dinner," and they were divided into three sets, entitled "the eligibles," "the so-so" and "the frumpes," while notes in brackets frequently followed a name as an apparent link to the memory of a hostess who prided herself upon the arrangement of her dinners. For instance, there would be "Miss Smith," and then in brackets, "A great talker; put her next to a quiet man;" "Mrs. B. hasn't an idea in her head; give her to Mr. A., who requires only an audience."

At her own name, which came under the discouraging head of "frumpes," the visitor could hardly restrain her indignation. She read, "Mrs. M., your soul, but dull; don't care for three dinners; must stick to one somewhere."

At that moment a step on the stairs warned the trespasser of the approach of her hostess who, suddenly realizing that she was reading a private paper, which certainly was rather an odd thing to do, she hastily replaced the list in the book and turned to greet the woman whom at that moment the cordially rated, although conventionally demanded that she should act as if she had not read the trifling little paper.

"By the way, Mrs. M.," said the house mistress as she was taking her leave, "when can you dine with me? Can you come to my sons' bacon next Wednesday?"

This was more than Mrs. M. could stand.

"I am sorry," she said, "that I shall be unable to accept your kind invitation, but being both 'so-so' and a 'frump,' I am sure you would be disappointed when you departed, leaving her to entertain him, who then caught sight of the unlucky book upon the table and realized the situation.—New York Tribune.

How It Originated.

The scene is on the banks of the Euphrates shortly after the episode in the Garden of Eden. The new world is still fragrant with the flush of divinity, and the nightingale, roused from her midnight dreams, pours her melody through the exhilarating air.

Suddenly from a neighboring cave there comes a clamor such as the nowborn world has never before heard.

All the beasts of the field and the forest were roused and startled, and for a time none had the courage to investigate the cause of the outcry.

Presently the lion turned to her spouse and asked him if he would not investigate. At that time he was making ready to catch the last of all animals.

So, of course, he could not refuse. Rising from the bed of leaves, he stalked out through the night and disappeared, and still the dread cries resounded through the vibrant air.

Presently the lion returned, and his spouse, who was crouching terror stricken in her lair, inquired what it was all about.

"Oh," said the lion haughtily, "it is merely that couple of human beings. They are raising Cain."

As everybody knows, Cain was the first-born of the human family, and the phrase as spoken by the lion that night has come echoing down the ages, and as yet we always describe the worst noises by saying that some one is raising Cain.—New York Journal.

LARGE REWARD OFFERED.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Police Inspector Chicago has made a verbal offer of $20,000 in approved real estate to any person producing Mrs. Luetgert, dead or alive. Attorney Harmon of the defense has complained that he is only prevented from producing Mrs. Luetgert, dead or alive, by lack of funds, and Inspector Schlaack, it is said, chose this method of retribution. He also hopes to thus put a quietus on the reports from various parts of the country that Mrs. Luetgert has been discovered.

In view of the dangerous character of the counterfeit, Secretary Gage decided to stop issuing and to call in all $100 silver certificates, of which there are about $26,000,000 outstanding. These will be exchanged for silver certificates of smaller denominations and the counterfeiter to the casual observer, under a glass may slight differences be discovered. These, however, were extremely difficult of detection.

2 a. m.—Twenty-four known dead in the last at this hour. In addition to those named already, these are dead: W. H. Del. James McLean, John Brattie, Stephen Williams, Oswald Brine, B. Jacques, John Fellows, Allen Lowe and an unidentified man.

Both of the city hospitals are full and many of the injured are at their homes.

Many of those carried down by the falling floor were boys from 14 to 16 years old. Some of them managed to squirm from under heavy beams while men could not move.

This was, however, a number of them were killed before being crushed out by the beams gradually settling upon them, borne down by the heavy iron safe and the steam coil.

Although the platform on which the speakers of the evening were standing was apparently the first thing to give way, the majority of many older men had escaped the death that overtook so many others who followed them into the lower portion of the building.

A glance at the wreck after the catastrophe disclosed the fact that a whole section of the floor had dropped, the joints being nearly cut off as though the work had been done with a saw.

The building was an old one, having been erected in the early fifties, and late years additional stories had been placed on the old walls.

In the Grand opera house, which adjoined the wrecked building, the first act of "The Girl From Paris" had just been concluded when word was whispered through the theater of the calamity.

A panic was imminent, but it was averted by the actors and ushers, and the people quietly left the building.
